Universal Screening for Emotional & Behavioral Problems in School

Randy W. Kamphaus, Ph.D.

Dean, College of Education, Georgia State University

ACT Early is a longitudinal study of the effectiveness of screening practices for emotional and behavioral problems in school. Year 1 data from 625 children will be presented to compare empirical and theoretical-empirical screeners. Conceptual and practical challenges of school-based screening research will be discussed.

Arizona State University, College of Liberal Arts & Sciences, Department of Speech and Hearing Sciences is approved by the Continuing Education Board of the American Speech-Language-Hearing Association (ASHA) to provide continuing education activities in speech-language pathology and audiology. See course information for number of ASHA CEUs, instructional level and content area. ASHA CE Provider approval does not imply endorsement of course content, specific products or clinical procedures.

Dr. Kamphaus, is a distinguished professor of Psychology at Georgia State University. He is a Fellow of APA and editor of School Psychology Quarterly. He has authored 12 books and 5 psychological tests. His research deals with behavioral/emotional screening, early intervention and prevention of problems in school children.
